

Managing sustainability risks

ansa is a signatory of the Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI) and is committed to follow a sustainable approach to generating investment decisions. Absolute and Total Return strategies are implemented by ansa primarily via liquid derivatives on equity indices, interest rates, commodities and currencies.

For these products, as of today, there is only limited availability of information on implicit sustainability risks and ability to choose from alternatives. Accordingly, ansa currently does not explicitly take potential negative effects on sustainability factors into account when implementing Absolute and Total Return strategies.

We are happy to discuss with our clients how sustainable investment approaches can be implemented given their investment restrictions and goals.

Furthermore, ansa continues to monitor the market and will implement sustainability factors in its strategies, too, once additional information and alternative investment products suitable for ansa's strategy implementation become available.

Last updated: March 2021